

Gloversville Next.

The New Yorkers Play Here Thursday and Saturday Evenings.—Friday Night at Montpelier.—East Boston Takes both Games of Double-Header.—Scores 19 to 18 and 17 to 15.

From the outlook at present there is sure to be a record breaking crowd on hand when Co. G of Gloversville and Co. D of St. Johnsbury take the word at the armory Thursday night. Both teams will present the strongest line-up they have put on the floor this season and it is bound to be a red hot go from start to finish. The locals were never in better shape and the visitors have been trimming everything in sight lately. New seats have been put into the hall and they will undoubtedly be needed. Both games are guaranteed to go the full 45 minutes and there is no danger of the claimants of the world's championship sending a substitute team. The game Thursday night will begin at 8:30 and the one Saturday evening at 9 o'clock. It might be well at this time to mention the fact that in order to be sure of seeing this big event it might be well to plan on attending the first game, as according to the way the seats are being snatched up by out-of-town fans for the Saturday game standing room will be at a premium.

Kilbourn of Laconia will officiate as referee in all three games and if what we hear of him is true, he will officiate too.

North Attleboro, who substituted for Attleboro in the game at the Armory, Saturday night, got a total of 18 points, including four from fouls, out of a total of 87 points scored during the game. The remaining 83 points were credited to Co. D and if they had had anything like luck in shooting, their score would undoubtedly have been doubled. The locals were never in better condition and their team work and signals never worked better. Lucase was the man of the hour, and his 10 baskets were the results of the headiest and latest work he has done on the local court this season. Chamberlin and Wyatt, by comparison, were fast men in the visitors' line-up. The summary:

Co. D.
Bremer 17, Lucase 19, Chamberlin 10, Wyatt 10, Knicker 10, Wright 10, Crocker 10, G. D. 10, Referee, Davis. Time, three 15m periods. Attendance, 450.

As was expected, the opening game Saturday night between the French Catholic Association and the Crescents, for the local championship, was a hair-raiser. The F. C. A. won by the score of 26 to 17, giving them two victories over their speedy rivals. The Crescents were strengthened for the occasion, but even at that they fell quite a little short. It was a case of team work and systematic passing against individual work, with the natural result that team work triumphed. The winners gave an even better exhibition than in their last game; they kept the ball in motion all the time, and after the first period there was no doubt of the outcome. Carr and Chapell played good ball for the Crescents, while the clever work by Demers and La Croix for F. C. A. deserves special mention. Summary:

F. C. A.
Duffie 17, Leffler 17, Demers 10, Gagner 10, La Croix 10, Crocker 10, G. D. 10, Referee, Davis. Time, three 15m periods.

The story of the double-header on Monday between Co. D and the Noddle Islanders is told by a ringside witness for yesterday's Boston Globe.

Yesterday afternoon and evening at Lyceum hall, East Boston, the Noddle Islanders won both contests, the afternoon one by the score of 19 to 18, and the evening exhibition, 17 to 15. The playing was rough in both games.

In the afternoon session, in the first few minutes of play, fouls were frequently called on both teams. The score from free tries did not have much effect on the total number of points, as many of the attempts from the foul line were unsuccessful.

Corbett was the first to cage the ball after dribbling the sphere twice and then shooting a breach of the amateur rules, according to which both teams were supposed to be playing. This was passed unnoticed by the referee.

Brennan next scored from the middle of the floor and got another point for his side on a free try.

About this time rough tactics were employed by both sides. At one time five men were scrambling on the floor for the ball with arms interlocked. Such playing as this slowed the game down so much so that baskets were few between during this period, the half ending with East Boston in the lead by the score of 12 to 7.

In the second half Knicker showed, brilliantly for a while for the visitors his clever floor work enabling him to score twice by advancing the ball from a backfield position to the basket almost unaided. Vaughn managed to score from under the basket.

With the score 18 to 12 in their favor the Vermonters continued satisfied. East Boston took advantage of the poor work of the leaders and quickly scored three baskets from the floor, which, added to one on a free try, was sufficient to give them a victory. The summary:

Co. D.
Bremer 17, Lucase 19, Chamberlin 10, Wyatt 10, Knicker 10, Wright 10, Crocker 10, G. D. 10, Referee, Davis. Time, three 15m periods. Attendance, 450.

There was no change in the lineup of the quietest when they appeared for the evening game. The style of play of the afternoon was repeated.

Knicker scored on both combinations, but no scoring was done from the free tries. A foul was then called on St. Johnsbury and Crowley made the point. Two fouls were called on Crowley for rough playing, Matthews getting one point and losing the other free try. Matthews then showed some of his old-time playing and got two baskets in succession, one from the side of the hall and the other about 10 feet from the netting. Corbett was the only other player for the Noddle Islanders to score from the floor in this half, St. Johnsbury leading 12-3, when time was called.

Knicker started scoring in the second period. Corbett then put life into his team mates by getting his second basket of the contest. The same player repeated his previous performance and excitement ran high.

Time was called for an injury to Matthews and when play was resumed East Boston forged to the front and finished strong, Corbett and Crowley getting baskets which put their team to the ground when the chances looked anything but bright. The summary:

Co. D.
Bremer 17, Lucase 19, Chamberlin 10, Wyatt 10, Knicker 10, Wright 10, Crocker 10, G. D. 10, Referee, Davis. Time, three 15m periods. Attendance, 450.

Basket Ball Notes.

Gloversville Thursday night, and again Saturday night.

Skeets Wright played with Lanter against the People's Palace Five of Jersey City last Tuesday night. Lanter won 6 to 3. Skeets made five of the six points. Going some.

Ward Brennan has signed with the Hartford team of the New England league for the summer. He will play the left garden. Lucky Hartford.

It will be the world's champions of Gloversville vs. the world's champions of St. Johnsbury. We rather think the banner will be left flying over the armory after Saturday night.

Numerous prep school teams having failed to lower the colors of St. J. A. the college boys from Hanover are now going to take a back at them. The game is scheduled for Friday night, St. J. A. will have to step lively, but have you even seen them when they couldn't do so?

Gloversville's latest victims were Brattleboro and Keene last week. The former team was snowed under, 56 to 18, and Keene finished a one-sided game with 11 points against the New Yorkers 45.

Co. D plays Webster tonight at that place. Poor Webster.

From the standpoint of a fan we can hardly imagine a worse calamity than not having secured seats for tomorrow night's game, unless it is not having secured any for Saturday. If you are one of this number we would advise you not to delay any longer, as they are bound to be scarce before the doors are opened.

Brattleboro is playing four local men and one outsider, and they are doing some talking just now about the team. In this connection we would like to suggest a team from here, made up in the same way, and one which we think would put the kibosh on the organ city quiet. Here it is: For the out-of-town man, Skeets Wright, center guards, Bill Wright, Gibson and Bothwell, forwards, Snythe, Hale and Cummings.

Co. D will be represented in the series with Gloversville by the following: Tom Matthews, Ward Brennan, Jack Lucase, Paul Krueger, Skeets Wright, and Benie Vaughn.

A special train will be run from Morrisville, Saturday night and the people of that city have already reserved 100 seats.

Montpelier people have seen more or less basket ball in their time, but they still have something coming to them, and it is coming Friday night, when Co. D of this place and Co. G of Gloversville line up there.

Gloversville will bring a long string of players with them including E. Wachter, L. Wachter, Cunningham, Davey, Hardman, Williamson, Pete Lamb and possibly others. These men are all fast and they will undoubtedly show St. Johnsbury fans that they haven't lost all their cunning since they were seen here in the exhibition game with the old local team.

East Boston's total lead in the two games was three points. Do you suppose the Noddle Islanders could do as well against Co. D here or on any neutral floor?

The Yonkers News says the Co. D basket ball team has made St. Johnsbury, Vt., known all over the country, but at least one western scribe hasn't got the name down line yet. He informs his readers that Harry Evans has signed with the St. Johnsbury, Vt., team.

McKeesport is again in second place in the big league and only six games separate them from the Southside leaders.

The decision by Referee Rein allowing a basket for Co. D in the tie game with Yonkers, which Yonkers claims was thrown after the whistle, has started a flood of discussion in the Yonkers News. The majority of the fans support Mr. Rein's decision and one of them is willing to bet a million that the decision was legal.

Ed Wachter is called the greatest center in the world. When he comes here Thursday night he will find in the local line up four men who have also played the pivot position at times.

Pass the ball.

School Notes.

The boys and girls of Grade 9 of the Summer street schools went snow shoeing Friday evening. Mr. Palmer and Miss Nichols accompanied them.

There was no session of the public schools Monday.

R. W. Stone of the U. S. Geological Survey, will deliver a lecture at the Museum Monday evening, at 7:30 to all the teachers of the public schools and to the pupils of grades 7, 8 and 9.

A plan is in progress that will enable all the members of the Ninth Grade Union School to take a three days trip to historic Boston sometime in May conducted by Supt. Palmer and the teachers of that grade.

It is expected that each pupil shall in some way earn the money required and most of them already have quite a start toward this fund. To this end a sale of reed baskets and other articles made by the pupils of the Ninth Grade Union School will be held in their room Saturday March 6. Further particulars will appear next week. Please have this in mind and give the boys and girls your encouragement.

The Hardwick teachers spent Tuesday visiting the St. Johnsbury schools.

RECENT DEATHS.

Lancet.

Ludger Lancet died Friday afternoon after two weeks' illness with Bright's disease. He had always been a perfectly well man, never losing a day's work on account of illness, until last fall when he was hurt by the breaking of the cable in the elevator at J. H. Ryan's shop. He had so far recovered from the effects of the fall that he could get around town with a cane when he was taken sick again and never rallied. He learned the trade of a carriage maker in Canada and followed it after he came here, being employed for many years by Miller & Ryan and J. H. Ryan.

He was born in La Prairie, P. Q., July 4, 1836, and was there married, July 5, 1856, to Melanthe Laperle, who survives him. They have had eight children. Ludger of Boston, Mrs. J. E. Drouin of Lowell, Mass., Mrs. Eugene Verrier of Waterbury, Ct., Mrs. P. J. Gagnon, Mrs. A. J. Fiehe, Aime and Gustave Lancet of St. Johnsbury, and Joseph Lancet, who died four years ago. He also leaves a brother and sister, L. A. Lancet of Rock Island and Mrs. Ceina Beavous of Montreal, and three half sisters, Miss Hermine Lancet, Mrs. Charles Parlier, and Mrs. Charles Vayreau, all of Montreal.

The funeral was held Monday morning at Notre Dame church, Rev. A. Dame officiating. Those from out of town called here to attend the funeral were Mrs. J. E. Drouin, Mrs. Eugene Verrier, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Normandin of Derby Centre, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Lancet, and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lancet of Rock Island.

Smith.

Mrs. Henry Smith died Sunday morning at her home in the Republican block. Two years ago she was badly burned and had never been well since. Death was caused by dropsy and heart trouble. Sarah Cloggsden was born at Burke, daughter of Sylvester and Lucretia Cloggsden, in 1840. She was married in Burke in 1863 and lived there until she came to St. Johnsbury 22 years ago. She is survived by her husband, Henry Smith, a son Elmer and a granddaughter Belle. The funeral was held Monday morning, Rev. A. H. Gage officiating and the remains were taken to Burke for interment in the family lot there. One brother, Charles Cloggsden of Barton was called here to attend the funeral. She also leaves a sister, Mrs. George Eastman of North Haverhill.

Letter from Mr. Blodgett.

TO THE VOTERS OF ST. JOHNSBURY: You will be called upon at the coming March meeting to take action upon the compensation to be paid your treasurer for the coming year, irrespective of who he may be.

I believe it is the desire of all to treat this matter fairly in the light of such information as they have regarding it. I have hesitated about making a statement lest it might be construed as a bid for the office; but I am convinced that for your servant, and the only person who has accurate information upon this subject, it is my duty to place it squarely before you, regardless of consequences.

The income from the office of town treasurer the past year amounted to $1772.21. Of this $1200 was salary, and the balance was the commission allowed by law for the collection of taxes. The town has paid me for services as town clerk $175.38, as shown by items on pages 30, 31 and 52 of the last town report. Besides this I have received for recording deeds, mortgages, for marriage licenses and for filing attachments, etc., $285.44. Except for the salary which you paid your treasurer, neither office has any definite income, but the compensation is made up entirely of fees depending upon the amount of work done.

I have given this information to aid you in determining what compensation you should vote your treasurer the coming year, and I have stated the situation precisely the same as though I were not a candidate for these offices. I have received only such fees as the law gave me, and only such salary as was fixed by the selectmen under your vote; and if elected, I shall expect to work for such compensation as you think is fair and just. You have the authority to fix the amount at the coming town meeting, under article 8 of the warrant.

H. W. BLODGETT,
Town Clerk and Treasurer.
Dated at St. Johnsbury, Vt., February 22, 1909.

Some Suggestions on Town Affairs.

Editor CALEDONIAN: Permit me to intrude upon your valuable space that I may make a suggestion to the taxpayers of this town.

For many years we have had placed in our hands at about this time of year a report of the Town of St. Johnsbury. A good report in so far as it goes, but why do we stop where we do? What is essential to make this report complete is an inventory in dollars and cents from the head of the department. No report of a corporation, association or a business is complete or comprehensive without such an inventory.

A valuation should be placed on every piece of real estate, as well as upon all personal property belonging to our town and this should be so shown in our annual report that every taxpayer may know whether our assets real and personal are appreciating or depreciating. This would also in a measure tend to stop the little leaks and materially check waste.

The mere fact that we received, say $60,000 into our town treasury, and paid out say $55,000 would lead the average taxpayer to think we were getting along ahead famously, but not so if it were true that our assets as represented by our inventory suffered a shrinkage of $7,000.

I would, therefore, recommend to the taxpayers of this town that we see to it that our town property be inventoried and that this inventory be carried from year to year and be made a component part of our town report.

Respectfully,
C. G. BRALEY.
St. Johnsbury, Feb. 22, 1909.

IDOL OF THE NATION.

The Queen of Italy's Devoted Service Appreciated by Her Subjects.

The frightful war wrought in Italy by the earthquake that destroyed Messina and Reggio has had one slight ray of consolation for the queen of the devastated realm. Her heroic conduct in the midst of the horrors of the first few days, the bravery with which she nursed the suffering, keeping so close to the danger zone that she was actually injured in a belated shock that came a week after the main upheaval, have made the beautiful queen the idol of Italy.

This is a place in the affections of the people that had never before been granted in full measure.

Queen Helene had to suffer to some slight extent for the enormous popularity of her mother-in-law, Queen Margherita.

Margherita is Italian, and Helene is not an Italian. She is a daughter of the Prince of Montenegro. She had no Italian sympathies at the time the crown prince went a-wooing. In fact, all her inclinations were in favor of Russia, the czarina of which nation she just missed becoming.

At first the substitution of the throne of Italy for that which she had lost did not afford full consolation. For one thing, the king of Italy is frail in health, and it was feared that the union might never be blessed by an heir who could succeed to the throne.

The coming of the heir was the first point that inclined the people toward regard for their new sovereign.

Her beauty had some influence on the impressionable Italians, for no one could discount that. It is said by many that she is the handsomest woman of royal birth in Europe. Her face is beautiful and her figure superb.

Italians liked to know that at every gathering of royalty there stood none to dispute in point of beauty with their own haughty and handsome queen. But it began to be discovered that there was more to the queen than her physical charms. Gradually she began to evince a mentality that ought not to have been a matter for surprise, considering that she springs from the heroic stock of Montenegro, that little princely that has not hesitated to boldly defy with force of arms on more than one occasion the power of the Turk.

The queen gradually developed an understanding of the Italian nature. She became proud of the art traditions of the country and of the heroic deeds of Garibaldi, Cavour and the other giants who had brought about the independence of Italy.

She appealed to the ladies of her court to be patriotic even to the extent of declining to take their fashions from Paris, but of adapting Italian ideas to their costumes in order not only to obtain more beautiful effects, but to promote nationalism.

Moreover, in her home life she has demonstrated a simplicity that appealed very strongly to the people. She who at court has a bearing unapproached by any sovereign of Europe declined to live in the stately palace at the Quirinal, but persuaded her royal spouse to take his residence in the small palace at the bottom of the garden, built by Pope Corsini and set apart during the life of Victor Emmanuel II. and Humbert for princes visiting Rome.

It is of modest dimensions, but it is pleasant and comfortable, and is fitted out with refined simplicity quite in the English style.

The queen enjoys the admiring devotion of her husband, and by preference they nearly always dine alone, their merry laughter heard by those in the next room showing the happiness they get out of their quiet life.

Ways of Womankind.

At a club meeting a few days ago there was much discussion of the efficacy of "classical education." And when the subject had been argued pro and con for some time, its value considered from all possible viewpoints, a professor from the University of Pennsylvania contributed to the debate a somewhat startling statement. He said that a classical education was worth while, not because it was useful, but because it was not; not because it would help a man or woman to make a better living, but because it was of no practical aid whatsoever. It was of use, he pointed out, because it was useless.

And in the university professor's contention there is a truth that reaches much further than a discussion of "classical education" in our schools and colleges. It is a truth that strikes straight home into the lives of each of us, that may well be listened to by American women today. We are in danger of forgetting nowadays the transcendent use of the useless thing.

As the professor says, we are falling into habits of "trivial utility." "Usefulness" is the criterion by which education, employment, even pastime, is judged. "Practical," "efficacious," "valuable," these are the test words by which we prove the worth of pretty nearly everything it seems, in life. It is a principle that goes along with our commercialism, though it reaches beyond the consideration of dollars and cents; our materialism, though it passes the domain of material things; our boasted "progress," to prove its emptiness.

And we need today, all of us, a recognition of the use of the "useless" thing—the thing that is "only" beautiful. We need to look away now and then from the manifold "conveniences" for our bodily welfare, our material prosperity, toward the light that only shines upon our souls. We would be better mothers, we American women, better wives, better housekeepers and stenographers and schoolteachers and librarians, if we forgot once in awhile those "trivial utilities" of our existence and saw the use of the useless, the wonderful, the transcendently worthy thing.

If thou of fortune be bereft
And of thy store thou hast but left
Two loaves, sell one and with the dole
Buy hyacinths to feed thy soul.

Absurd it sounds nowadays. And it is because it sounds absurd that we need it. The girl who spends her wages on books instead of shoes isn't so foolish, after all, no matter how much her wise mother may rail at her "silly extravagance." She "never will learn the value of money," as her mother says, a girl like that. But she may learn greater values none the less.

And it may be that if we stop fighting solely for crowns and kingdoms we may be found worthy of better desires and may set out with our faces toward the sunrise upon the quest of the Holy Grail.

Absentminded Agent.

An absentminded agent is responsible for the fact that a tenant in an apartment is having all her rooms repapered this season. By the terms of the lease certain repairs were to be made, but repapering, it seemed, was not included. Not knowing this, the woman telephoned the agent and asked where she should go to select papers. He, having much else on his mind and taking it for granted that she would not ask for anything not allowed, told her the dealer's name and sent her on an order. The paper was selected and paid for, and the woman supposed it had been hung until, going into the apartment last week to see, she found it still on the floor. Investigation proved that no orders for putting it up had been given, and the agent's telephone wire became hot. "Why isn't the apartment in order?" the tenant demanded, and the agent went scurrying to his books to find out. Then it was discovered that no agreement had been made as to paper, and that was why no orders to hang it had been given.

But, as the woman said, as long as they had bought it, was it worth while to let it stay on the floor? Wouldn't it be more economical to put it on the walls and not repaper next autumn? The argument was so logical that the agent was obliged to succumb, and seven rooms are being done now that except through error would have remained unfurnished.

Suffragettes in Ancient Rome.

The suffragette is no new thing. There have been suffragettes for a long time. They had them in ancient Rome, for Professor Ferrero, who lectured in Columbia university the other day, said so.

What's more, the old Romans, just like the men today, thought that things would go to rack and ruin just as soon as the women got the ballot. The Italian professor said: "The suffragette agitation is not new, for the victory of the feminine over the masculine spirit was a part of the history of the second empire, when greater wealth and security broke the bond of women during the earlier struggles toward imperialism. The Romans at a slightly later date complained that the dress-makers and the jewelers would send Rome and the empire to ruin and passed a great many laws in an attempt to restrain a great many extravagances in living and dress."

Dear, dear Rome fell. Somebody better be restraining these American women.

For Chapped Hands.

This jelly is delightful for chapped face and hands and other winter ills: Seven ounces of rosewater and thirty grains of gum tragacanth. Let soak for three days, strain forcibly through muslin and add one ounce of glycerin, one ounce of alcohol and one-half teaspoonful of pure borax.

Keeping House Plants Healthy.

The leaves of house plants should be cleaned with equal parts of milk and lukewarm water, applied gently with a sponge. This should be done at least once a week to keep the plants in good health.

SUBSTITUTE FOR BRIDGE.

A New Argument in Favor of Card Playing.

"Now that I have mastered bridge whilst sufficiently well to be a good average player I am going to learn some solitaire games of cards," recently announced a vivacious young matron, to the astonishment of her listeners. "Why do I bother when I am not keen on cards? Well, I am making provision for old age or in case anything should happen to land me in an invalid chair as a shut-in. I'd try chess, too, if I had the brains and sufficient power of concentration. You know my grandfather was for many years confined to the house on account of rheumatism and later paralysis, and if he had not been a good card and chess player life would have been unbearable for him. Of course he read a good deal, but his eyes would not stand a strain, so cards and chess became his refuge. When he could get any of the family to play with him he was delighted, and of course he was given that pleasure as often as possible. But in the meantime he consoled himself with solitaire games and got so much comfort and satisfaction out of the pastime that I am determined to have a similar resource to fall back upon in case I should ever need it."

"That's a new argument to me for card playing," said one of the listeners, "and I am inclined to think it a good one."

Eczema Lodges in the Skin.

Not a Blood Disease—Cured by Oil of Wintergreen Compound.

For many years eczema was supposed to be a blood disease and was erroneously treated as such, but now the best authorities agree that eczema is only a skin disease and must be cured through the skin. The eminent skin specialist, Dr. D. D. Dennis, first discovered the eczema germ and his discovery was quickly taken up in both Germany and France.

To kill the eczema germ and at the same time heal the skin, Dr. Dennis compounded oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc. The remedy is a liquid, not a mere salve, hence it sinks right into the pores of the skin. Washing with this oil of wintergreen compound seems to take the itch away at once; soon the scales drop away and the disease disappears. C. C. Bingham, St. Johnsbury, and O. B. Cutting & Son, Concord, Vt., endorse D. D. D. Prescription. The prescription has now been used so long as to have proven its absolute merit and we do not hesitate to express our confidence in D. D. D. Prescription as used with D. D. D. Soap.
